

Duxbury's 113th Fourth of July Parade

The Sons of Blues rocked the Student Union Association's float, a tribute to the 25th anniversary of the movie The Blues Brothers.

Three-year-old Josh Connor shows off his patriotism and his custom-made bag for collecting candy thrown during the parade.

The Bergeron brothers – Dick, Bob, Ray and Don – rode together in this year's parade. All four are Navy veterans of World War II.

Police Chief Mark DeLuca leads the department's color guard, which won top honors at Monday's parade.

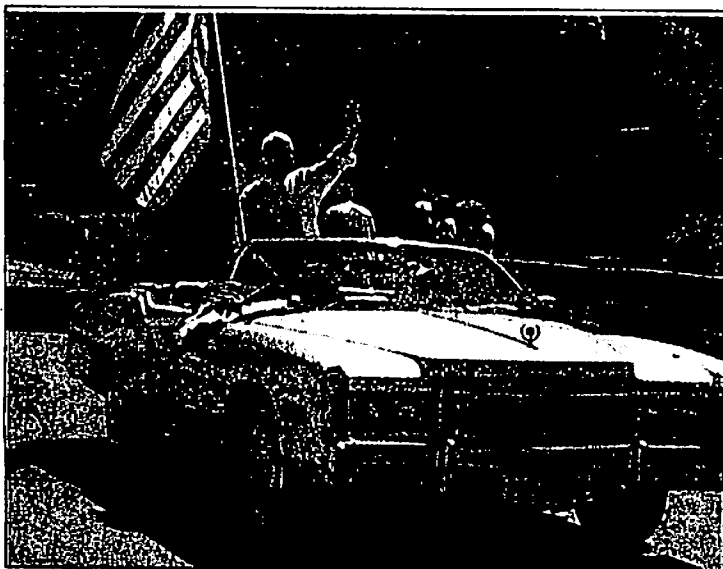

The South Shore Bay Band played Friday night at DHS and again during Monday's parade.

Parade favorites Uncle Sam (Woody Woodruff) and Lady Liberty (Ruth Woodruff).

Duxbury Free Library's "Bookmarks Club" took home second place in the maxi-floats division with their Indiana Jones recreation.

State representative Daniel Webster rode in style at the beginning of the parade while his colleague, Rep. Tom O'Brien, hit the streets to do his waving to the crowd.

The Sleeping Beauty float, by firefighter Chuck Nudd and friends and family, took first place in the maxi-float division.
